ICSR joins Association for Information Science and Technology (ASIS&T) as an institutional member

Scholarly societies have an unparalleled ability to convene expert discussions on topics at the forefront of research. To join those conversations, ICSR has become an institutional member of the International Society for Scientometrics and Informetrics (ISSI), the European Network of Indicator Designers (ENID) and most recently the Association for Information Science and Technology (ASIS&T). The latest edition of the ISSI Newsletter features an article about the recently launched ICSR Lab, raising awareness of this initiative in the community.
